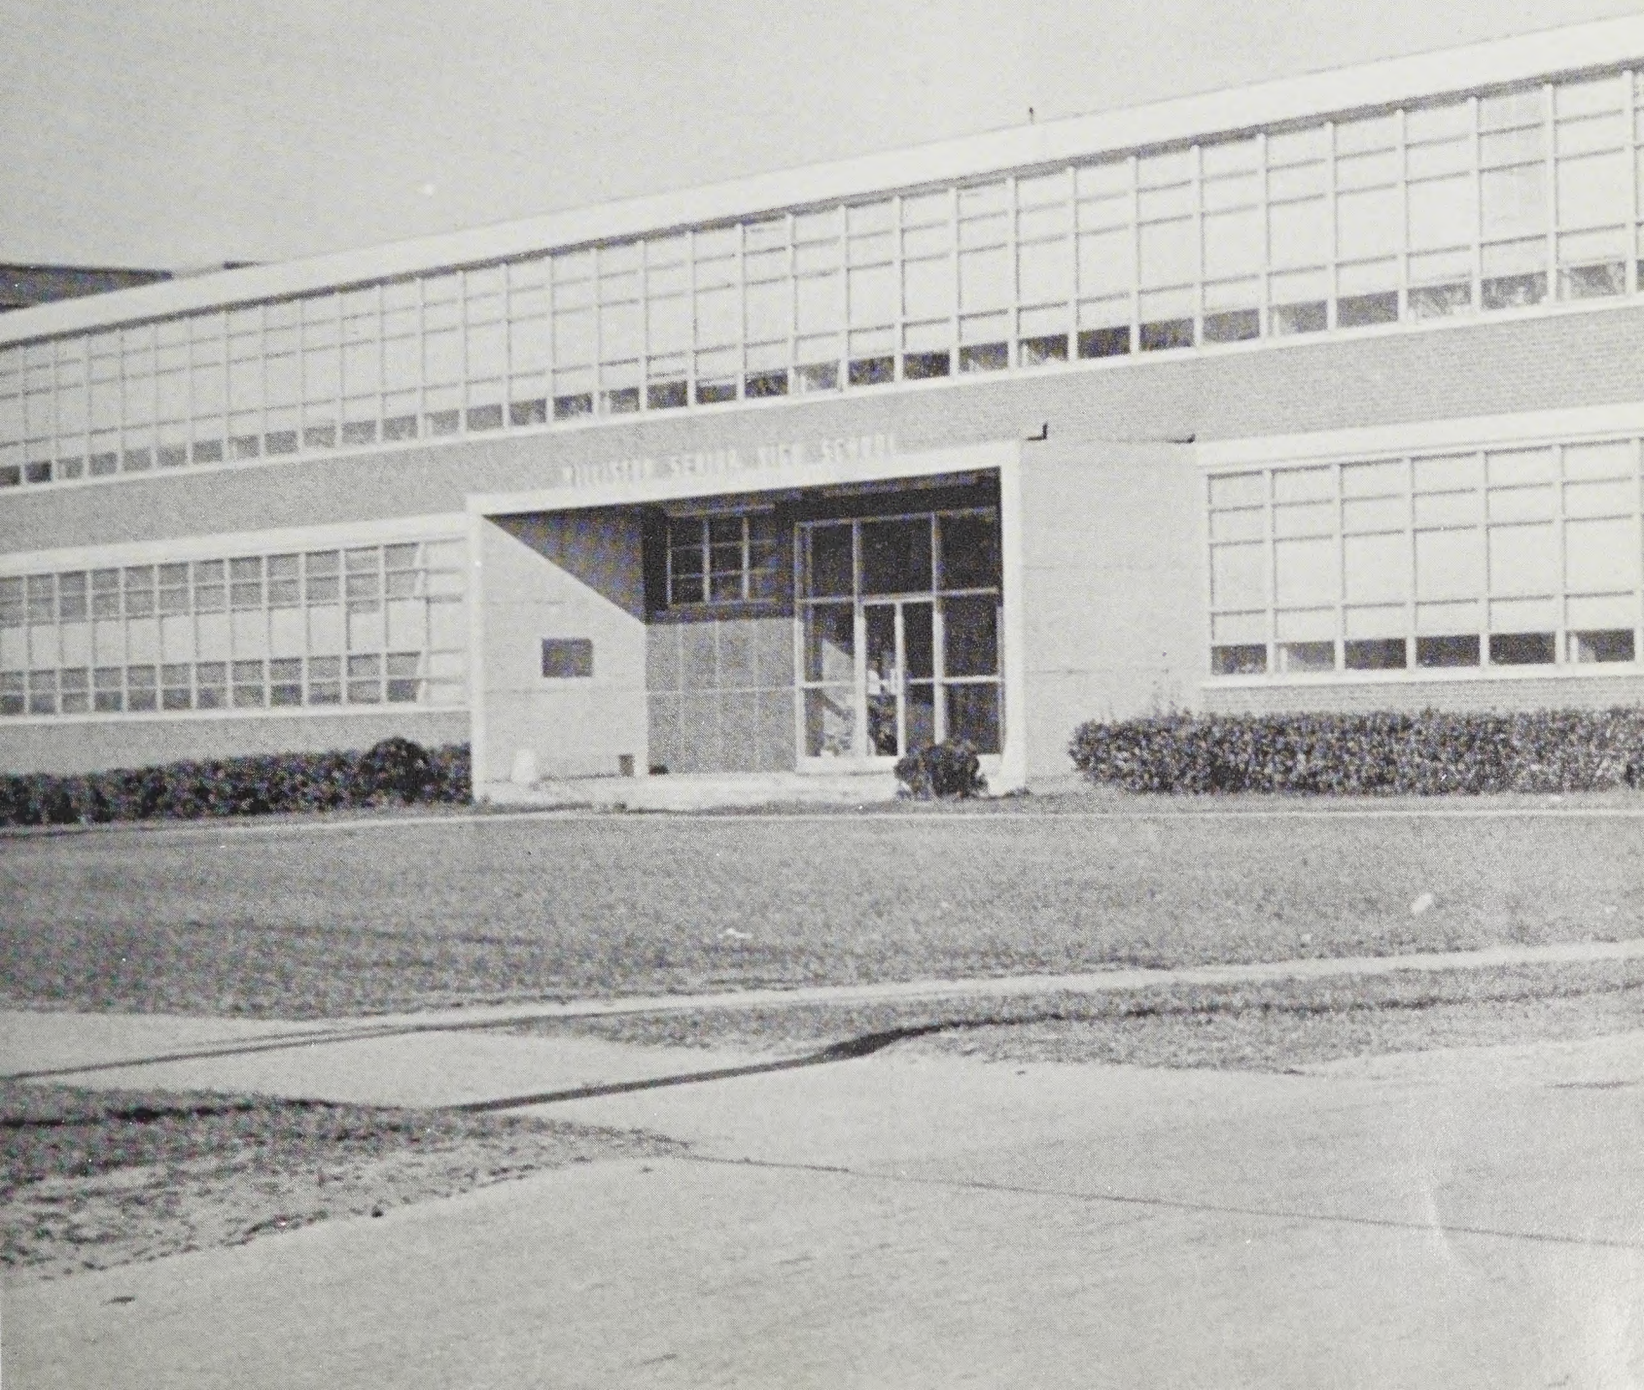
A STEP TOWARD THE RIGHT DIRECTION
THESE THINGS WE SHARE . . .

"I am Williston, The Greatest School Under The Sun. These past few years, we've shared together our victories and our defeats. The bonds that tie me to you shall never be broken. Thousands have walked my halls. Thousands have come to me to learn of culture, religion, recreation, knowledge, and numerous other reasons. Together, we have shared all this. Yes, I am Williston. And these things we share . . ."



THESE THINGS WE SHARE . . .

Culture . . .

Religion . . .

Education . . .

Recreation . . .

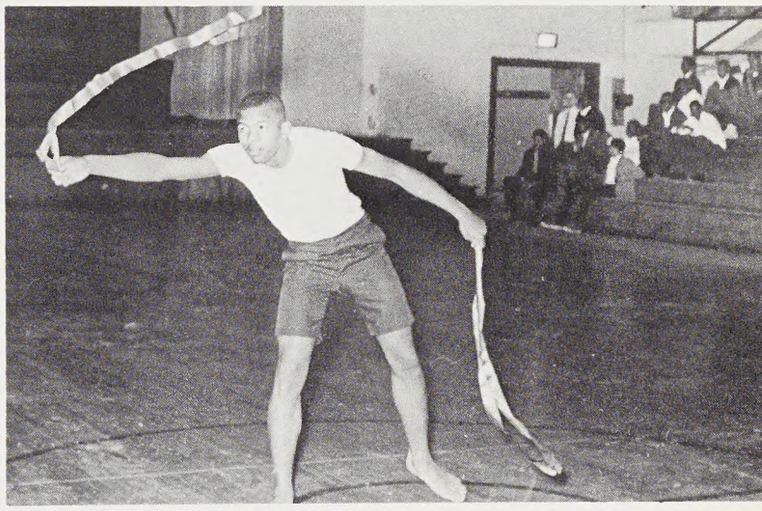
Knowledge . . .

Education

Silence, stillness, and an alert mind, was the order of the day. These graduating seniors are out on their own, putting use the knowledge and perserved thoughts they've shared these past few years. One of the best things one can share is knowledge. These things we share . . .

Religion

Sharing is a vital necessity at Williston. Here, the Tri-Hi-Y conducts its annual Christmas Program to help the needy and poverty stricken homes throughout the community. By sharing, even if but a small portion, the hearts of many are lightened from day to day. These things we share . . .

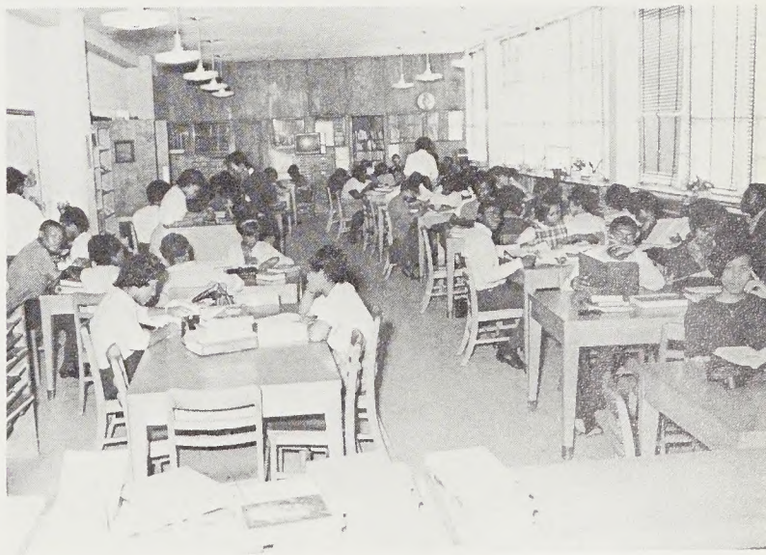


Culture

A bit of culture never hurt anyone. Every now and then, the student body has a chance to taste a bit of culture. Louis Hargrove displays a ribbon dance. Only through understanding culture in its relation to society, can you interpret such a display of talent and meaning as this. Yes, we share our culture.

Recreation

Sharing their extra time and efforts, our instructors maintain the sound and healthy bodies of many. To participate in recreation is a means of relaxation and diversion from school day studies. It gives the students a chance to share in something they all enjoy. These things we share . . .



Knowledge

Looking toward a bright future, Willistonians take advantage of every moment possible of the school library. Assistants share their own time to render their services in the up-keep and maintenance of our store house of knowledge. These things we share . . .

FOREWORD

"Down deep in our hearts lies a love so strong and true . . . We cherish thy name and thy precepts too." These words from our alma mater express the deep feeling of every Willistonian towards his school and his community.

Imbued with the idea of giving of talent and time, our students are ever alert to school and community service. The idea of sharing is learned early and is carried into their adult lives.

Williston engulfs itself into the tide of community activities. Students participate in recreational activities sponsored by various agencies. Our churches depend upon them for their musical talents and their leadership. The libraries in the city are used daily by literally hundreds of them, while others give service to these important agencies. Ever alert to changing times, the students here can be found participating in testing programs of all kinds. Their culture is enhanced through memberships in the community concert series, the Thalian association, and attendance at many outstanding affairs.

Religion, Recreation, Knowledge, Education, Culture--These are the things we share.

Culture

"The Amphitheater", located at Greenfield Lake is more than what you might expect. Many outstanding dramatic and musical productions are presented here annually. Easter sunrise services are also held in this natural setting. Our own Williston Senior High School Glee Club has performed here on numerous occasions. Indeed, all programs here, along with the whistling cypress and beautiful azaleas, have but added to the enjoyment here at the Amphitheater."

Religion

An important part of the many things we share are our religious affiliations. Among the many historical places in our city is St. Thomas Church, which is 110 years old. It was here Cardinal Gibbons wrote the well known hymn "Faith of our Fathers." The interior of the church was partially destroyed by fire this year. It is now a historic shrine.

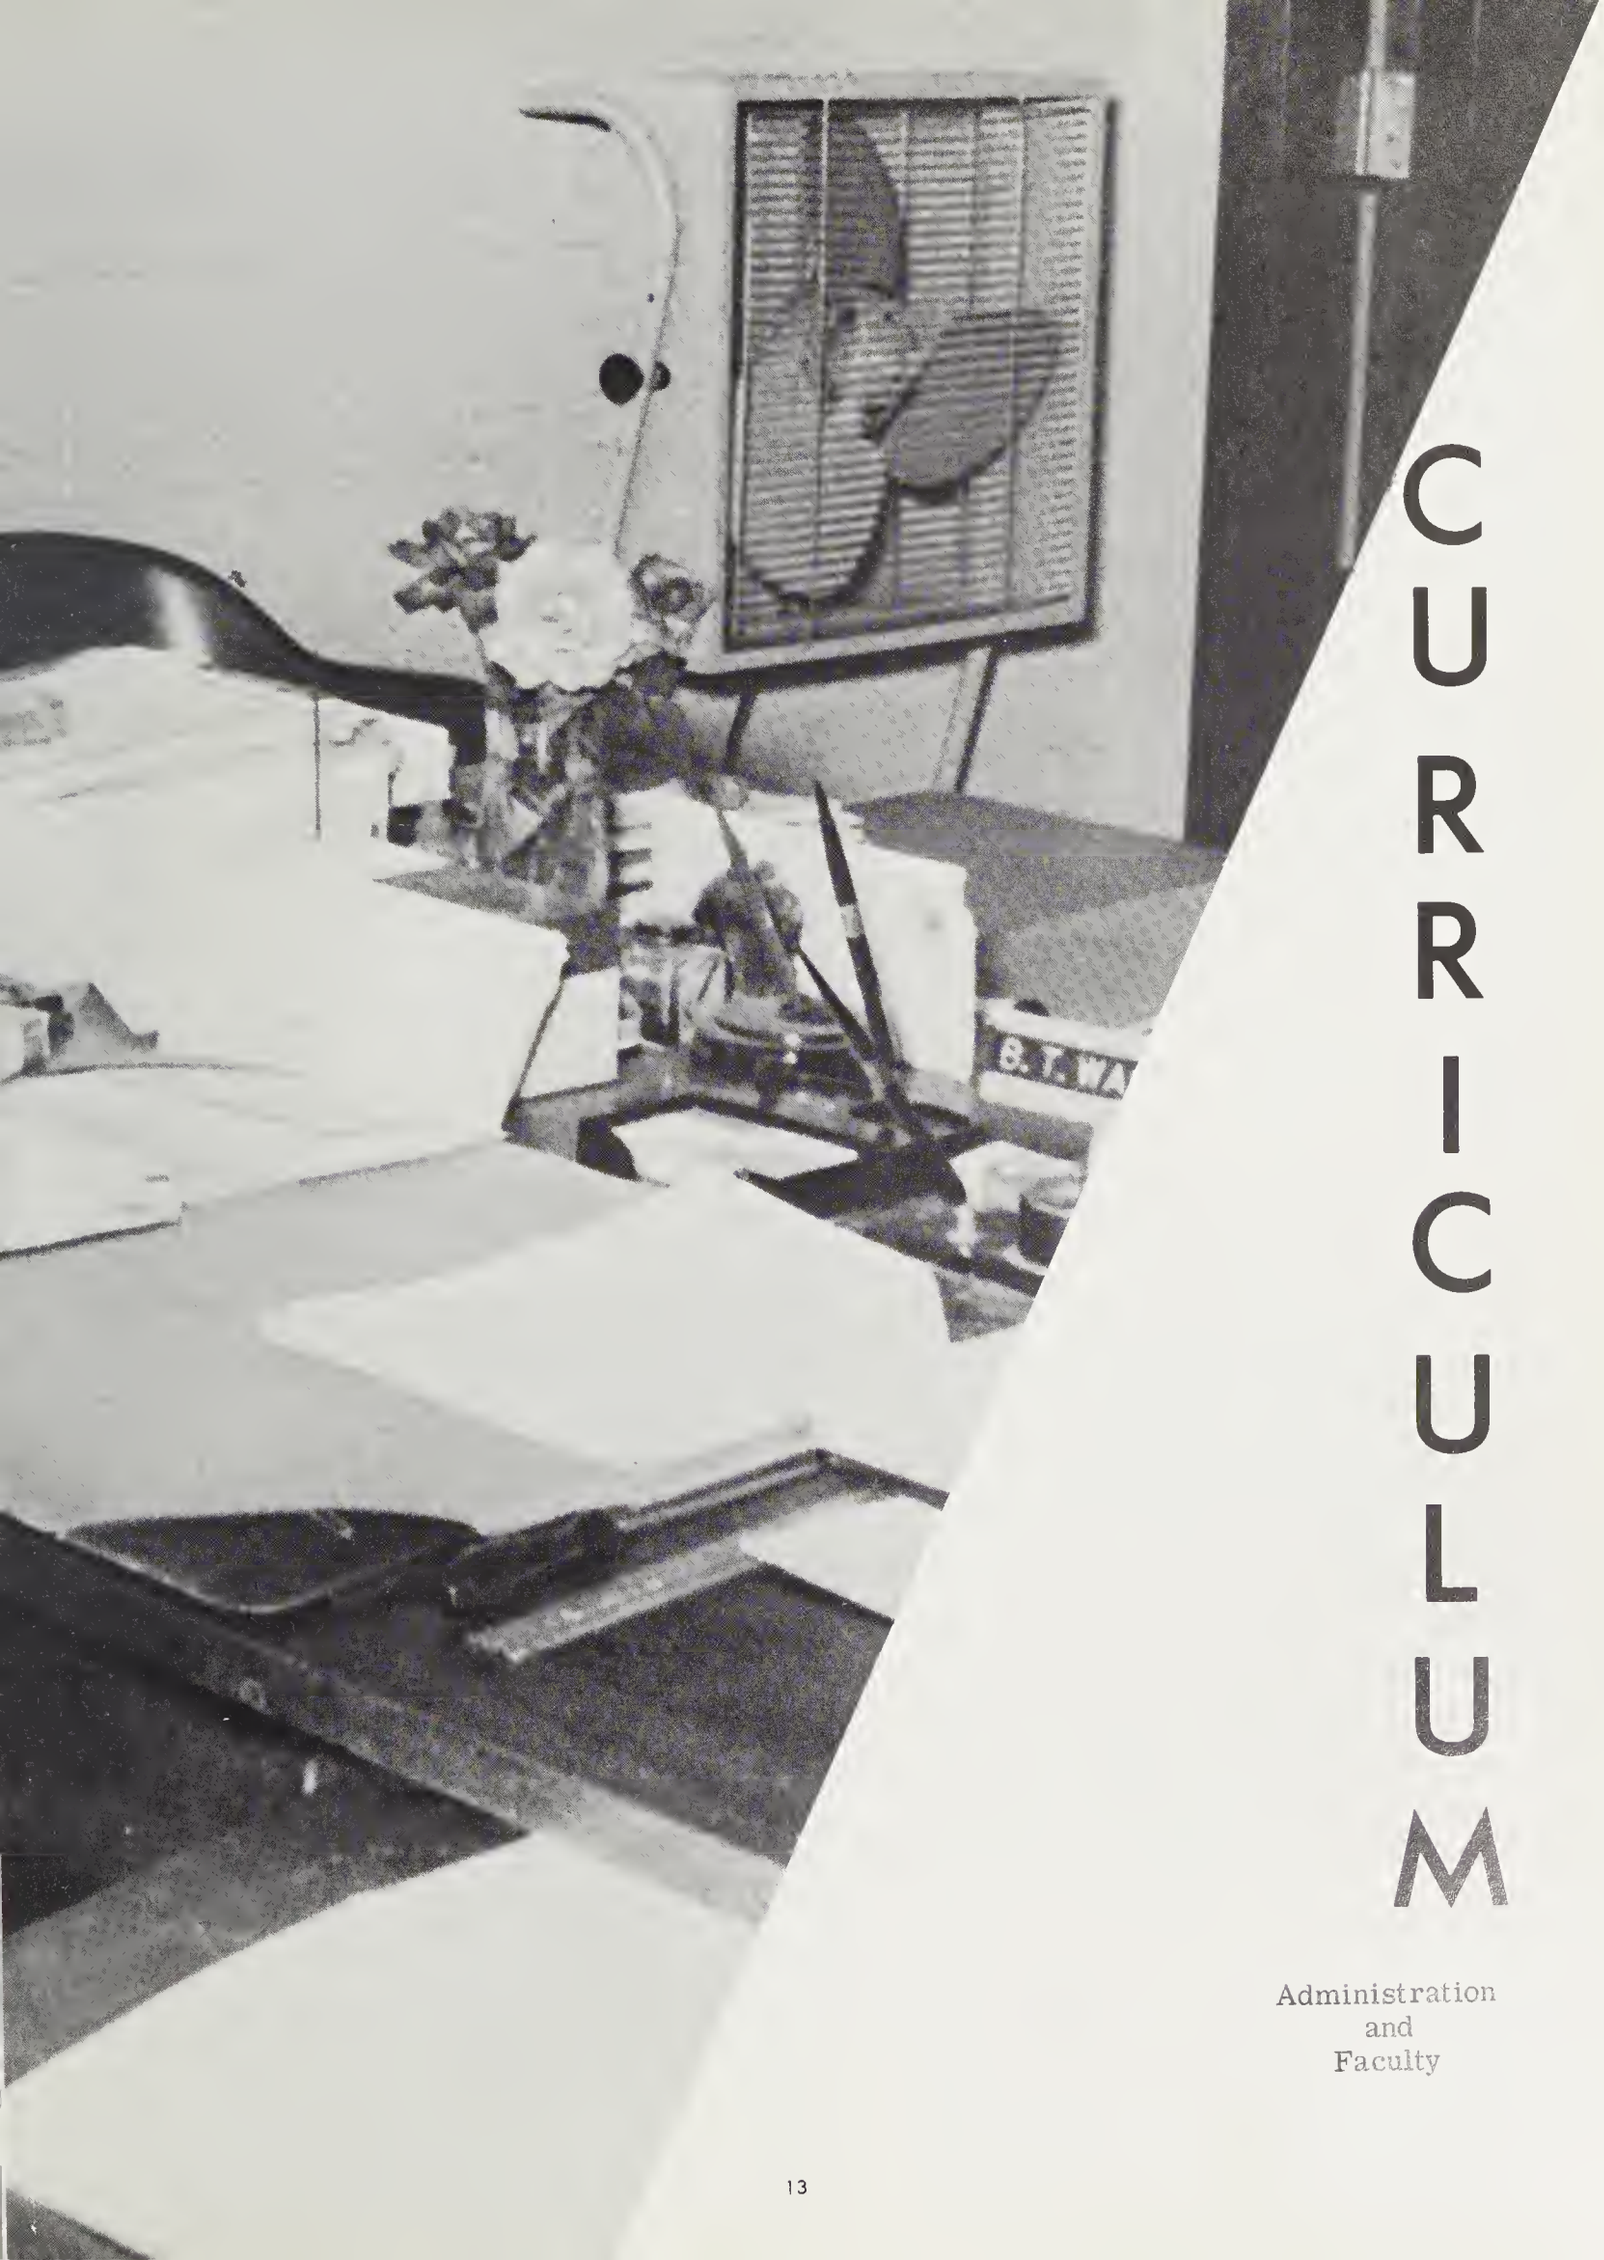
Education

"A little learning is dangerous thing, [illegible] ot the Pierian spring."

These are the w[illegible] of Alexande[illegible] o, but today Willistonians a[illegible] living up to [illegible] ry words. Here, che[illegible]istry stud[illegible] work, ex[illegible] y in complete [illegible]ents involving oxidation and r[illegible] learned in every classroom, but [illegible]

Recreation

Enjoying the best of southern weather, Willistonians are always to be found at Greenfield Lake. This park affords the best in recreation facilities in this area. Fishing, boating, hiking, amusements, and picnicing are but a few of the enjoyments Greenfield has to offer. Greenfield is a beautiful lake in a wonderful city!



CURRICULUM

Administration
and Faculty

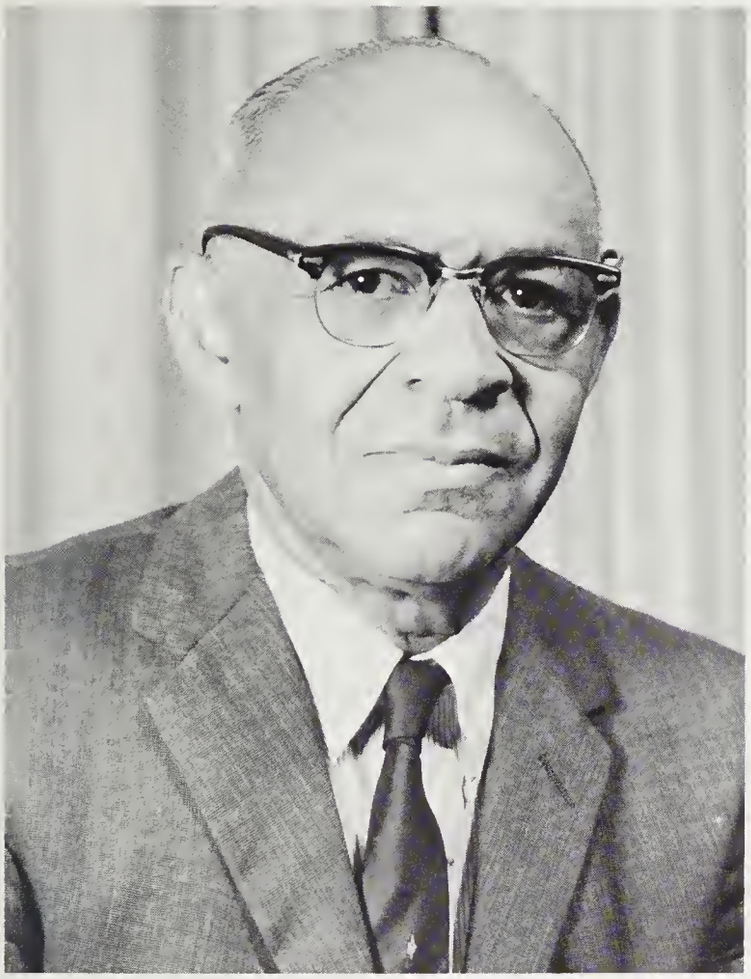
Since we first entered these halls, our principal has emphasized scholastic achievement and moral values. His concern has been an inspiration to students for more than a quarter of a century. He has guided students with patience and understanding causing some to excel beyond expectations.

Although our principal's interests are varied, his foremost concern is with youth. He is patient and understanding, kind and considerate, sincere and devoted.

School activities require much of his time, but he gives generously of himself to his community. He is active in both church and civic affairs. For years, he has served as treasurer of the state athletic association and in many capacities with the North Carolina Teachers Association.

Counselor and friend describe aptly our principal. This he has been to many who have come before us. This he will be to those who follow.



Mr. James H. Harris

Our assistant principal strives hard to better our school through good student-teacher relationship. His voice is familiar to all students as he makes the daily announcements or summons students to their proper place.

Camera in hand, Mr. Harris seems always at the proper place at the proper time. He keeps a pictorial history of the school at all times.

Early each day, he begins his work issuing audio-visual aids and ordering supplies. His duties are varied and as school treasurer he collects funds, maintains the books and writes the checks.

A former teacher of mathematics and science, our assistant principal is handy in many ways. He is always ready to give a helping hand and has proven himself a capable assistant.

ENGLISH

English is a required subject for all students on each grade level. English 10 gives sophomore students opportunities for oral activities in book reviews, memory lines, class discussion, special reports and panels. The grammar is a review of ninth year fundamentals and the literature provides material for a broader appreciation of literature and reading development.

English 11, for juniors is a continuation of the principles of grammar. The literature deals with the influence of American ideals on literature and the different types of literature of great American writers.

English 12 deals with the fundamentals of grammar and composition. The literature, which stresses English literature in our heritage, reflects the writings of great authors from the Anglo-Saxon period to the present day.

The English department also offers a reading improvement course to give special attention to the individual needs of students through developing reading competencies, vocabulary improvement, comprehension, and study skills.

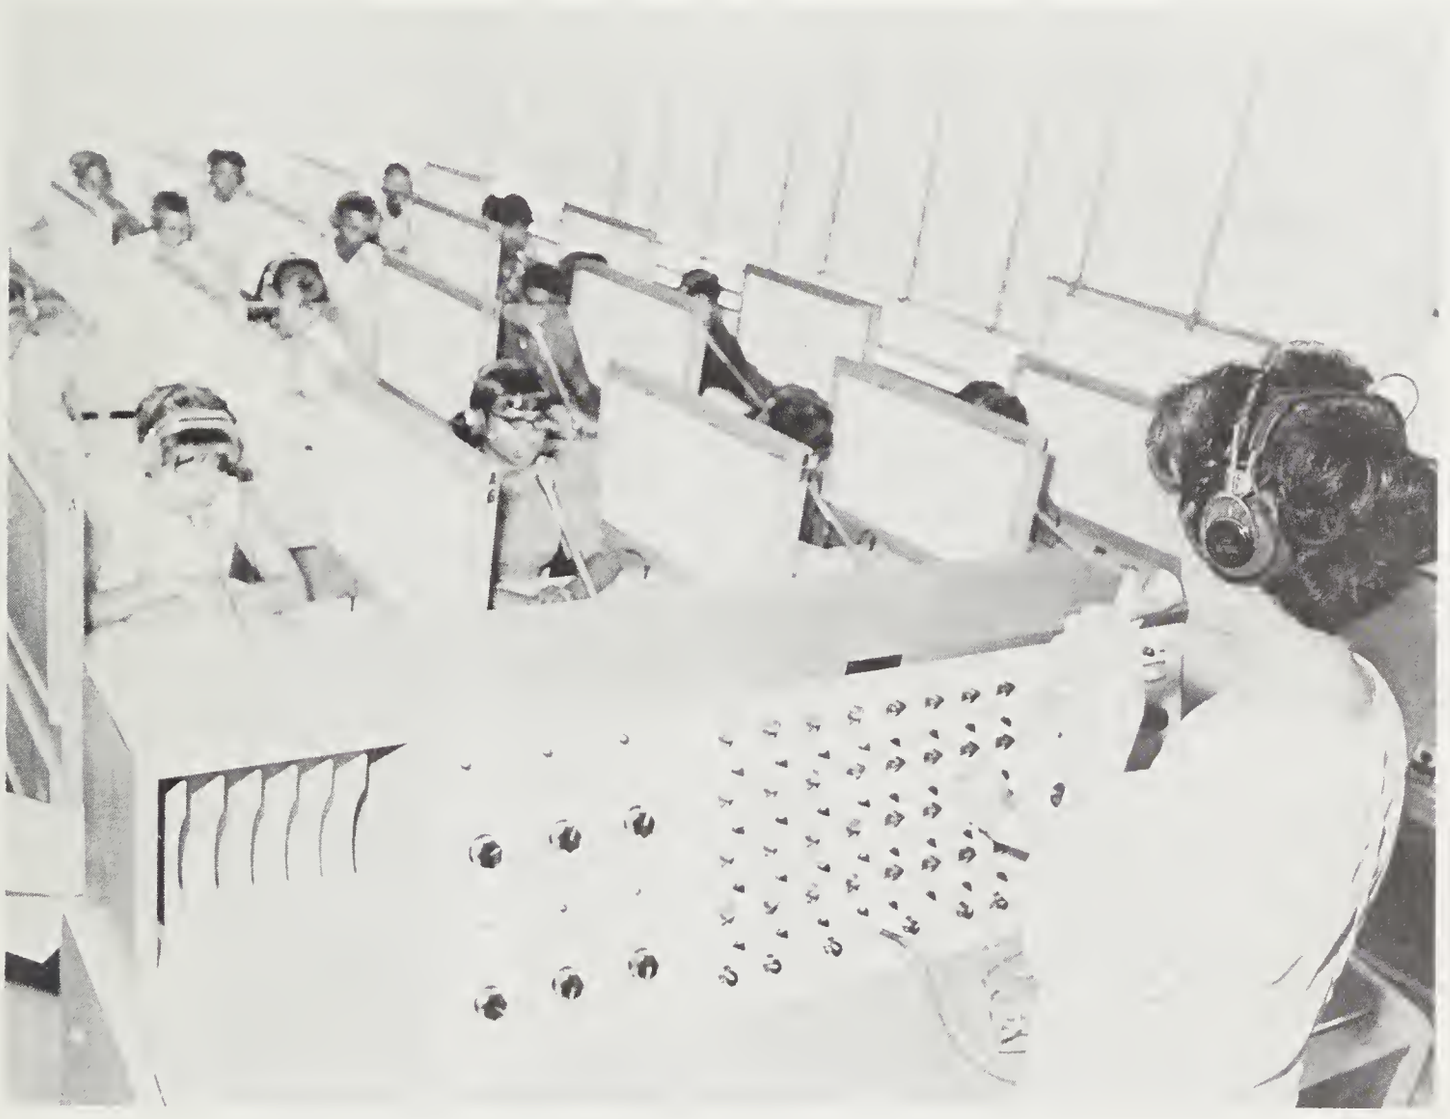
FOREIGN LANGUAGES

Mrs. Dickerson assists students in the foreign language laboratory.



Sharing things with others we must also learn new languages. Our French, Spanish and Latin classes take care of that new step in our life. In these classes the students work most of the time in the laboratory listening and repeating what is heard on the tapes. Though few of us realize that Latin exists we find that this field is growing more and more as the years advance.

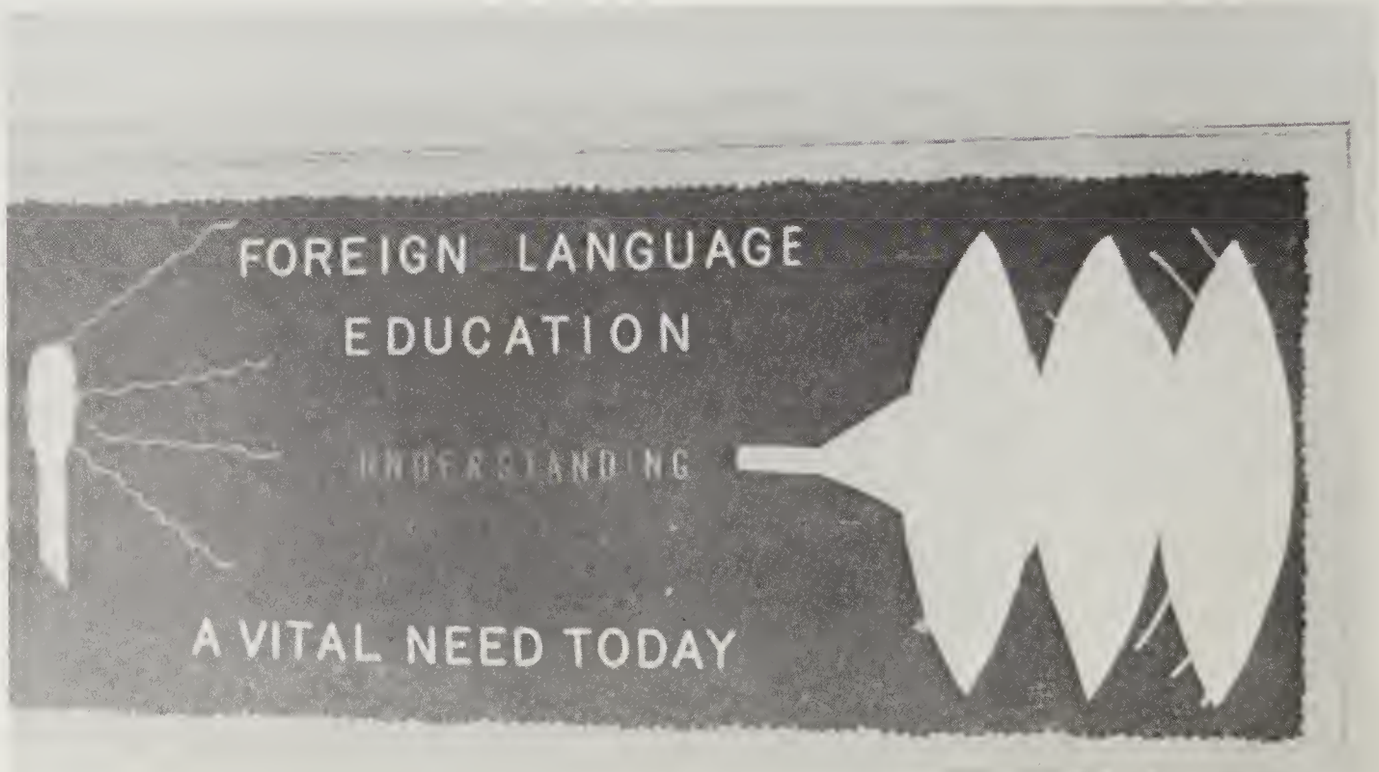
Mr. Walker



Miss S. B. Hooper, social studies teacher completed 43 years of service at Williston. Civic leaders, school administrators and teachers, former students and the student body paid tribute to her at our assembly program.

SOCIAL SCIENCES

These things we share daily the problems of the world, the way people live, and probably solutions to joining together these people of all nations. The Social Studies department is working hard on teaching Willistonians about their world.

United States History aims to develop a better understanding of the major events and movements which have taken place in the making of the nation. Emphasis is placed upon having the student fill his place in the American democracy in such a way as to contribute to its preservation and improvement.

World History is a survey course of man's historical background. The major civilization and nations are studied in order to show how they developed, what factors were responsible for their rise and fall, and what were their lasting contributions to the world.

Government includes a study of the growth and development of governments and consists of a study of national, state, and local governments. International relations and some study is made of foreign governments, but not in great detail.

Sociology and Economics are half semester courses. Sociology is a course designed to help the student see himself as a social being in a complex society made up of various social groups.

Economics is a study of the material wants and needs of man and his efforts to meet and fulfill these wants and needs through production, distribution, exchange, and consumption of goods and services.

Mrs. A. G. Burnett watches intently as a representative from Cortez Peters Business College exhibits his skill at the typewriter.

BUSINESS

Business students are among those who share daily their time and talent with the school and community. Many students plan to pursue careers in business after high school.

The subjects offered prepare students for future jobs upon graduation or for further training. Courses include shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, and office practice. Students may elect cooperative office practice as an aid to improving themselves and getting actual job training.

Mrs. D. F. Murphy (center) instructs a class in personal typing. This course is designed for the student who is not in the business curriculum but would want to learn typing for his personal use.

Miss Sylvia Turnage, a practice teacher in the business department, instructs a student on the proper use of the typewriter.

Mr. Cortez Peters, Jr. gives our students who are interested in a business career a demonstration on the typewriter. His skill at the typewriter keyboard make his demonstration one that was of interest to all who witnessed it.

MUSIC

"Music is the universal language of mankind." The familiar quotation was the underlying theme of the Music Week Extravaganza presented by the Music department. The purpose of this year's program was to let the faculty and student body know of the expansion of the department. This year the music department offered to the students courses in consumer music, fundamentals of music, and music appreciation, Chorus-vocal training for beginners and inter-students, Advanced Chorus--the major performing vocal music group of our school.

HOME ECONOMICS

Even though the Home Economics department is for female students only, it has played an important role in our school. This department helps to mold our girls into young ladies who will be prepared for the future. The first year of Home Economics is a course planned for meeting the everyday needs of teenage girls. In Home Economics II emphasis is placed on the girl as a member of her family group with the aim of developing wholesome attitudes toward family living.

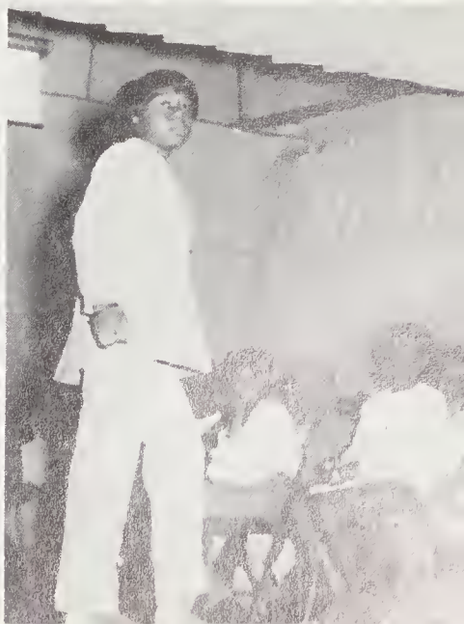
Home Economics III includes individualized experiences with emphasis on various specialized fields including family clothing, parenthood, fabrics, management of family resources, food problems for special occasions, and family meals for different income levels.

Home Economics--Food is a course for students who have a special interest in the preparation of food. Home Economics--Clothing is designed for students with interest in clothing selections and construction.

Elizabeth Hardy

Luella Smith

Ethel Clemmons



Mrs. A. P. Harris and Mrs. M. G. Greene, our Home Economics teachers, take a keen interest in our girls and strive to help them become better young ladies. They share many interesting experiences with the young people in this department through the various activities which grow out of classroom work. Students in groups prepare and serve different meals, entertain with teas, formal luncheons and dinners, display fashions they have made.

Some students have been active participants in the nursery school program. There they put to use their knowledge of child care.

Exhibits of food and clothing throughout the year have provided an opportunity for students and teachers to share their work.

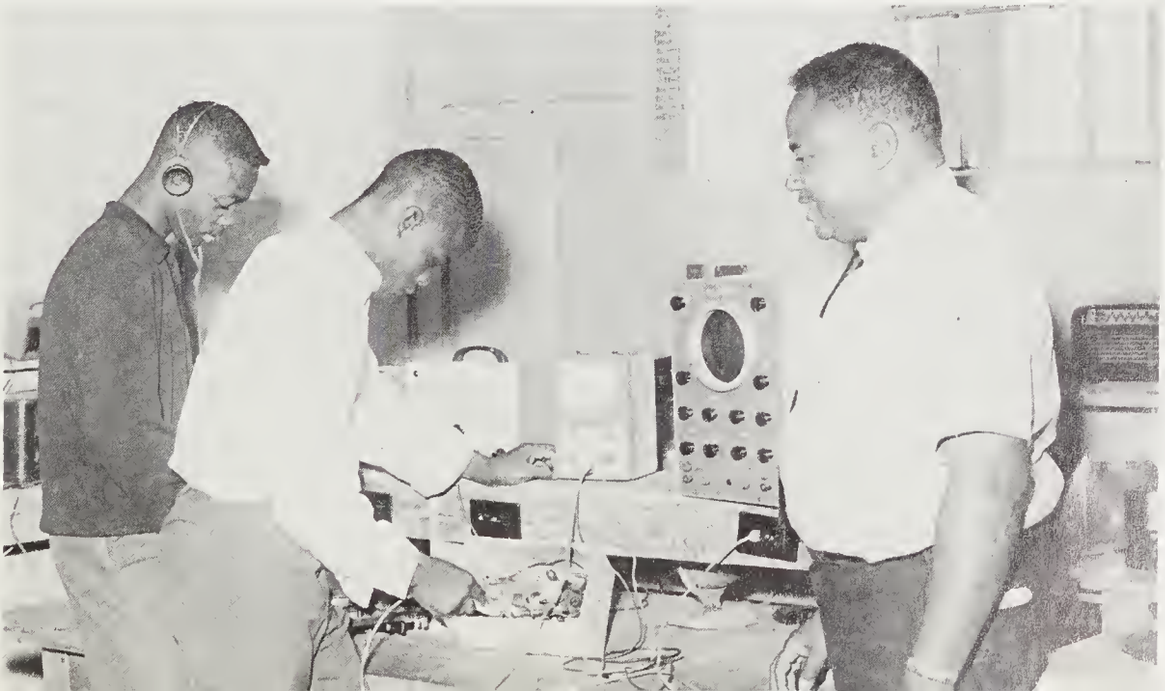
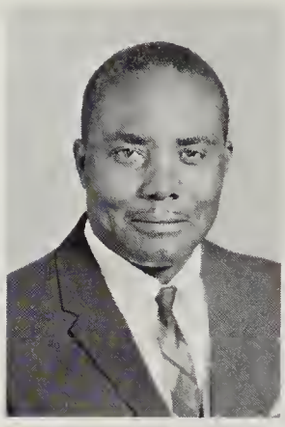
TRADES

The Vocational Department at Williston Senior High School serves as a major function in our secondary school system in New Hanover County. It provides practical and technical training for a great number of our students who are technically inclined. We have at Williston eight individual trade courses. They are Industrial Cooperative Training, Distributive Education, Introduction to Vocations, Bricklaying, Commercial Cooking, Tailoring, Auto Mechanics, Electricity and Drafting. The purpose of these programs is to provide pre-trade and trade experience for the students. We are all aware of the ever present shortage of skilled people in every line of technical work. It is hoped that by acquainting our students with the contents of the trade course offered here greater numbers will avail themselves of opportunities available in industry.

Each class in the department offers a sequential course content so that learning processes are continuous both theoretically and practically.

Mr. Singletary instructs two boys in electricity.

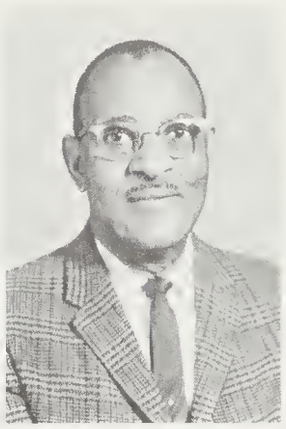




The brick masonry classes practice what they learn through school and community projects. Mr. Wright is the instructor.

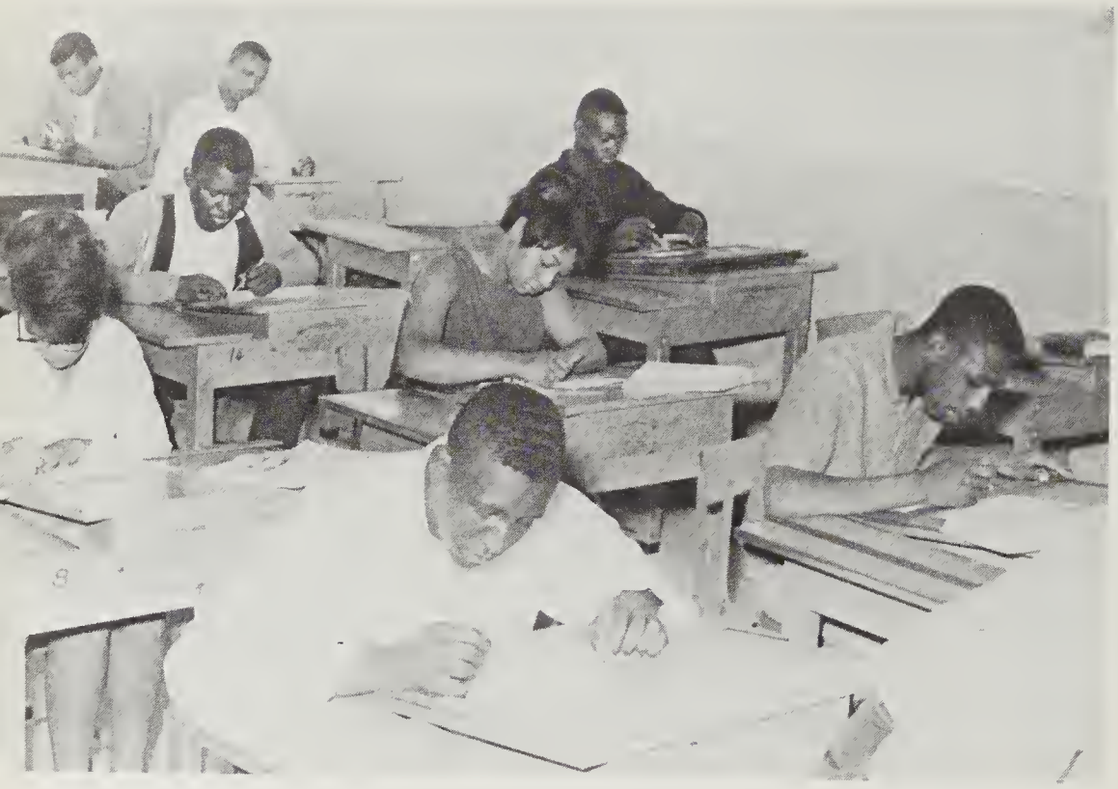
C. Pressley works on suit that he is making as a project.

Mrs. Mack assists student in making buns.



E. Smith and A. Nixon use their skills in construction industry class. Mr. Fewell (above) is the instructor.

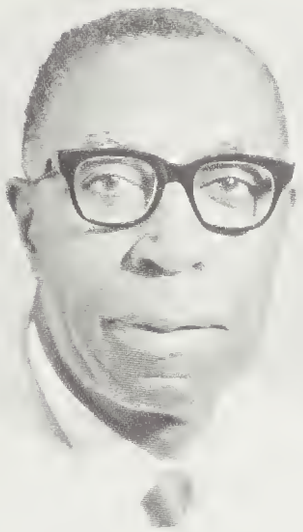
The boys in the Upholstery class learn to repair old furniture for use in the home.



A drafting class works at tracing and reproducing. These are only two of the techniques learned in drafting. Mr. Faison is the instructor (above).

A scene from the trades assembly program.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION



Coach Earl A. Corbin

In the program of physical education vigorous activities are essential for developing and maintaining physical fitness. They directly affect strength, flexibility, endurance and over all well being. Through the use of both large and small muscles of the body, agility and balance may be achieved. The child gains skills as well as an awareness of his own physical capabilities. He is given an opportunity to experience success by improving himself against his own previous record of attainment, or against that of his classmates. These activities also allow for the release of physical and emotional tensions. They build confidence, courage, and determination.

Drill team performs for students during assembly.

Girls physical education class shows the audience their latest stunt.

All children naturally love to climb, jump, roll or imitate. Let us not forget the mental side of physical education to think is to act. First we must gather the thought. The act then follows, as the completion of the thought.

The sharp, clear thinking mind in sound, well conditioned body is the ultimate aim of physical education.

DRIVER EDUCATION

High school students are the product of a motor age. Few homes are without cars. North Carolina has taken a giant step in providing training in driving for all students.

The students receive both in the car and classroom instruction. Not only is the technique of driving emphasized, but students are given a knowledge of the operation of the vehicle. Training even includes changing tires (girls, too).

Following classroom instruction, students take to the open road where they are taught smooth starting, good driving and stopping techniques.

Students receive certificates upon completion of this course.

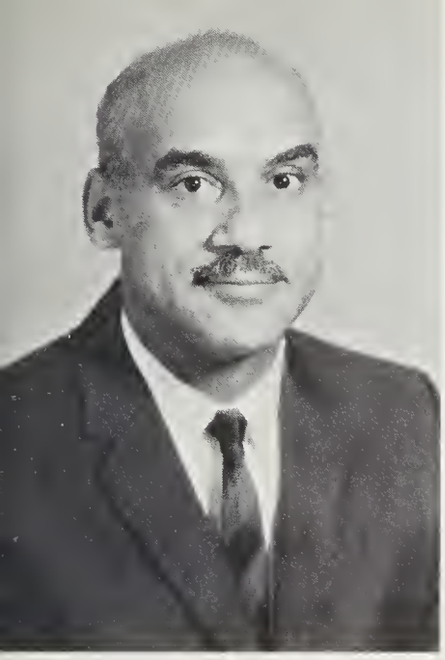
LIBRARY

The school library is an integral part of the school program. With its stacks of books, racks of magazines, and reams of newspapers, it beckons each student to come in and drink of the knowledge to be found.

If reading tires you, then the staff suggests you listen. With this in mind, a special section has been provided for those who wish to hear the great classics.

To aid you in finding books and other materials, volunteer student assistants are on hand each period of the day.

"Books are the legacies that a great genius leaves to mankind, which are delivered down from generation, as presents to the posterity of those who are yet unborn."



James T. Boone

ART

Students in art courses share daily their talents with students, teachers, and the community.

Designs, color, freehand drawing, lettering, sculpture, graphics, clay modeling and painting are some of the many activities in which the students participate.

Art history and appreciation are stressed to give students a better understanding of the background and importance of this subject.

Students with special abilities are encouraged to further develop their talents and perhaps pursue commercial art or other fields.

MATHEMATICS

The mathematics department offers several courses designed to help our students develop their mathematical skills to a full extent.

The consumer mathematics course is designed for students who wish only one mathematics course above the ninth grade and who are not planning to take other courses in the field of mathematics. Algebra I and Algebra II are courses designed for students interested in pursuing a college education. They acquaint the students with fundamentals of algebraic functions including logic, systems of equations, logarithms, numericae trigonometry, and work problems. Geometry deals with lines, planes, theorems, and properties of circles and spheres. For students planning careers in engineering, specialized fields of science and majors in mathematics, advanced mathematics is highly recommended.

Our mathematics teachers are Mr. Moore, Mrs. Newsome, Mrs. McDougle, Mr. Hassell, and Mr. Curry.

SCIENCE

In the science department we learn to share the many things that persons dedicated to the task of providing better things for better living. The science department offers biology, chemistry, advanced biology, physics, and physical science. Biology is required of everyone before graduation. This course involves a scientific study of living things and includes an investigation of their structure, interdependence and economic importance.

Learning how to dissect animals is important in general and advanced biology.

Miss Florence Johnson checks the roll before starting a class in the lesson for the day.

Chemistry deals with the structure and reaction of a wide variety of matter. The atmosphere, weights and measures, the states of matter, and specific units on such topics as formulas, colloids, and carbon compounds are included.

Advanced biology deals with the origin of life, the study of cells and tissues, heredity, bacteriology, embryology, evolution and the anatomy of the cat.

Physics is an advanced course for students who wish to continue their education in college or to become engineers. This course includes measurement of work, energy, force and motion, molecular structure of matter, measurement of heat, heat transfer and expansion caused by heat, sound and wave motion, current and static electricity, magnetism, communication and electronics, the nature and control of light, color, illumination, and atomic reactors and the uses of atomic energy.

Physical Science is opened primarily to seniors, this course cuts across subject-matter lines, stresses application rather than theory, and deals with modern everyday problems.

In the photo below Ernest Bailey and Mr. Moore are visiting the mechanical testing laboratory of the Polymer Research and Development Department at Bell Laboratory, Murry Hill. R. P. Wentz, a member of the department, is explaining the use of a machine for accurately measuring and recording the tensile properties of such matter as plastics, rubber, textiles, paper, leather, etc. Sample materials were tested for their ability to withstand the effects of stretching and relaxing over a wide range of conditions.

The National Honor Society is the most coveted organization on campus. It stands for excellence in the four areas which prepare one for life: character, scholarship, leadership and service.

An annual induction is held each year for juniors and seniors and an occasional private induction is held for seniors in early fall.

The society sponsors periodical honor roll sips, a live band dance, and an annual dinner each year in addition to attending the state convention.

The installation program this year was highlighted by a speech from Major Herbert Mallette who spoke on the four cardinal principles of the National Honor Society.

FUTURE TEACHERS

The Future Teachers of America organization in the Williston Senior High seeks to enable its members to study and identify the qualities, traits, and aptitudes which are basic or related to successful teaching.

This organization also enables the teaching profession to develop selective recruitment programs which will help colleges and universities identify capable candidates for teaching and to motivate students to learn about and choose appropriate fields of preparations.

This organization seeks to help the community achieve and maintain a balanced supply of qualified, competent teachers.

LIBRARY CLUB

The Library Club enriches students' reading habits and skills. It is composed of students desiring to give volunteer service to the library during the school year both during school and after school. The objectives are (1) to sponsor greater interest among the students in libraries and library service (2) to stimulate reading interest and (3) improve the library service of the school.

The club traveled to the public library during Book Week. While there the students toured the library and were given helpful information concerning the library and its facilities.

"Tiger" back court featured seniors R. Bell, L. Williams, R. Felder (31) and H. Gause.

The game is only as good as its officials. Referees Leon Simpson and Eli McCrimmon are shown taking a break during a game at Williston. Simpson went on to qualify for membership in the North Carolina High School Athletic Conference Board of Certified Officials and was eligible to call all the Tiger's home baseball games.

W. Rhames, R. Lewis, R. Robinson, H. Murphy, F. Johnson, T. Grady, J. Mack will return next year to give the "Tigers" a strong nucleus.

Tigers discuss strategy with Coach Corbin.

"Ducky" Johnson bombs in two from the top of the key as Sylvester McClain (20) looks on.

Horace James, Tiger's center fielder, connects for a homer as Tigers defeat Elizabethtown 19 - 7.

Corbin's Tigers had all the qualities of a winner. Good hitting, effective pitching, errorless fielding, and smart base running.

Tigers loosen up as they prepare to play E. E. Smith Fayetteville. Tigers won 7 to 6.

Tigers battery mates (above) were backed up by a slick fielding infield.

In 1950 E.A. Corbin coached Williston's first baseball team. Seventeen years later, he is still the baseball coach and the winningest baseball coach in the state of North Carolina. This year the "Tigers" won eleven games to give Corbin a total of 201 games won against only 14 defeats.

"The Tigers offensive machine". The Tigers had an awesome batting order. The regulars below batted a healthy .329, while blasting out 14 homers, 29 doubles, 13 triples and 72 singles.

F. Johnson, H. Jacobs, W. Sidberry, W. Heyer - KNEELING L. Franks, J. Bellamy, H. Rogers, D. Mose, K. Reid, C. Pridgen, J. Mays

District Hurdle Champ Henry Jacobs exhibits winning form that took him to a respectable third place finish in the state championship.
